RELATIONSHIP WITH OTHER COURSES

The course builds on rudimentary knowledge acquired at undergraduate level in IPE related courses

LEARNING / TEACHING METHOD

Lectures, seminar discussion, research assignments.

METHOD OF ASSESSMENT

Reaction papers:	20%
Midterm:	20%
Final:	20%
Essay:	20%
Participation:	20%

Students are expected to read each article or chapter on the syllabus closely, and to come to class prepared to discuss and critique the readings. Additional requirements include:

1. Weekly reaction papers (1 page in length), each of which critiques a week's readings. Reaction papers are due at the beginning of class, and retroactive papers (which discuss the prior week's readings) are not permitted. ~~Post to turnitin.com (the method of doing this will be discussed in class).~~

2. A 10-page essay on a topic related to International Relations Theory. The essay should identify any issue that interests you that is related to IR Theory. Draw on class material to identify an issue of your interest. Write a 10 page paper (typed, double-spaces, readable font) that has three parts. First, review extant research and focus on an area of IR Theory as it relates to an issue that interests or concerns you. Second, develop an argument. Finally, speculate on whether further research may be desirable or required in this area.

~~A one-page prospectus/proposal and bibliography is due on 15-December-2014. The essay is due by 15-January-2015. Please submit to turnitin.com (instructions on how to do this will be discussed in seminar and posted elsewhere).~~

3. Evaluation for the course will be based on class participation (20%), the reaction papers (20%), examinations (40%), and the essay (20%).

4. Successful performance on examinations (40%). There will be a midterm (20%) and a final (20%). The examinations will basically constitute a review of the materials covered in class and will entail some analytical essays. Details will be discussed in class.

PARTICIPATION

Students are not only responsible for producing 'reaction papers' every week; they are also expected to be participating in seminar debate and discussions. In preparation for class, the instructor will post items of interest to seminar members, posing questions. These will feature on either the blog or facebook, or other social networking media. Please make an attempt to respond to these questions. For each seminar, a seminar member will be designated the 'lead' discussant. On those days, the lead discussants should initiate discussion and help set the agenda for the seminar session. Please take this seriously, since participation is 20% of the final letter grade.

Formatted: Adjust space between Latin and Asian text, Adjust space between Asian text and numbers

ATTENDANCE

Attendance is compulsory by school regulations. Students are strongly advised not to miss lecture hours since success is closely related with attendance. Absences over 20% will be penalized with an NG. Bear in mind that attendance is not sufficient to achieve a high participation grade.

TEXTBOOK/S

Texts are not available at the university bookstore. Arrangements will be made to disseminate and make materials available to students. Most readings will be made available electronically, and will either be posted to the web page or forwarded by email. This will be discussed in class.

Grading and Assignments (see Method of Assessment above)

Plagiarism policy:

I. Policy Statement

The following policy statement is to be included in all course outlines and applied by all teachers

Plagiarism and cheating are punishable through medium or long term suspension under the Student Disciplinary Code By-law (see 6 (d)(i) of S99/175-12).

All cases of cheating on examinations will be forwarded to Disciplinary Committee.

Written assignments that are taken in full or in part from any source (printed or internet) without clear identification of all direct quotes and paraphrases or ideas are considered cases of plagiarism. Written assignments that have been prepared in full or in part by persons other than those who submitted the assignment, or the use of notes or copying in exams, or the submission of the same essay to different classes, are considered cases of cheating.

Students who submit a written assignment that contains plagiarism or cheating will have their grades reduced in the following ways by the instructor and Department:

- 1.1 In lesser cases of plagiarism (for instance when the content of unidentified quotes or paraphrases is less than 20 percent of a written assignment), the grade for the paper will be '0'.
- 1.2 In major cases of plagiarism, involving the preparation of papers in full or in part by persons other than those who submitted the assignment, the grade for the paper will be '0', and the case will be forwarded to Disciplinary Council or other authorized committee on plagiarism (please refer to the relevant by-law, S99/175-12). Instructors retain the discretion of failing the student for the course, subject to Disciplinary Committee oversight.
- 1.3 In lesser cases of cheating, the grade for the paper will be '0'.

All cases of plagiarism will be registered with the Department of International Relations.

All written assignments have to include the following signed statement by the student:

"I declare that this essay/report was fully prepared by myself, and that I have cited and referenced all quotations and paraphrases from the writings of other authors. I acknowledge that my paper and course grade will be reduced according to the Plagiarism Policy of the Department of International Relations if cases of plagiarism are detected, and that disciplinary consequences may follow".
